BARES ALL AS MENTAL TEST IS MADE

New York, April 15.—Henry Judd Gray has abandoned all hope of escaping the electric chair and is anxious to get the ordeal of his trial over with as quickly as possible. It was learned from a highly reliable source today.

In fact, the confessed slayer of Albert Snyder, magazine art editor, has intimated very strongly to those who have come in contact with him in the last few days that he actually desires death as the only prospective end to the misery that has come upon him as a result of his brutal crime.

To this end he is making a clean breast of everything. It is said, to the attorneys who have been engaged to study his mental condition with a view to an insanity defense, to his wife, his mother and Hadden Gray, the Syracuse insurance man, who helped arrange his alibi at the time of the murder.

The sudden change of attitude on the corner salesman's part is making it very difficult for his lawyers to arrange a satisfactory defense for the trial which begins next Monday. It is understood.

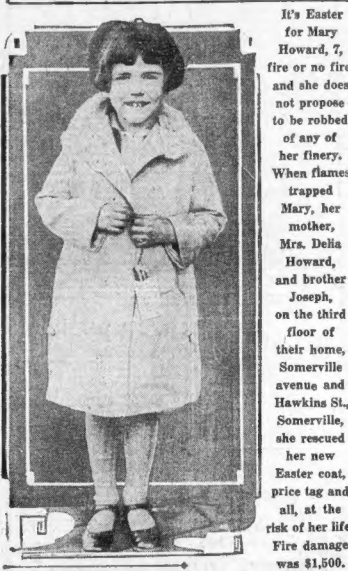

The four attorneys—the two employed by the defense and two by the State—continued their examination of Gray today. Although none of them would discuss their observations, it was learned that the prosecution's experts were impressed by Gray's apparent desire to have every detail, not only of the crime, but of his relationship with Mrs. Snyder.

FLIERS REGRET THEY DIDN'T GO TO PARIS

New York, April 15 (A.P.)—Paris via the non-stop air line is the next goal of Bert Acosta and Clarence D. Chamberlin, newly crowned world champions for endurance flying.

The two American civilian fliers, who stayed in the air 51 hours 11 minutes and 25 seconds to break the world's record for duration flight, today appeared none the worse for their experience and were enthusiastic over plans for a flight from Paris to New York in their Wright-Bellanca monoplanes in competition for the $25,000 Orteig prize.

Giuseppe M. Bellanca, designer of the craft, said an attempt to fly the first day, "said Chamberlin."

"Both of us regretted that we didn't have the necessary equipment to go to it right then. The wind was just right and we made 115 miles an hour. With the throttle wide open we could make 130 miles an hour."

Chamberlin declared he was ready to use the same plane in a transatlantic flight and Acosta said he "would prefer that plane and motor to any other I have flown."

WOMAN OF 84 DIES IN FIRE IN MEDFORD

Alone in her home, her screams unheard until too late, 84-year-old Mrs. Pansy Fairbanks, No. 17 Florence street, Medford, was hurled to death today when she tripped over an oil stove and became a human torch.

Charles R. Doyle, a neighbor, was overcome when he entered the house in an attempt to rescue the aged woman. He was carried out by Robert Ryan, a friend. Both men had been walking near the house when they saw little Robert Rose, 5, who had just left Mrs. Fairbanks' house. He told them there was a fire. The woman was taken to Lawrence Memorial hospital, but was dead on arrival. Police said the oil heater had probably formed carbon monoxide gas in the room and the woman tried to turn it off.

In some manner her clothing caught in the stove and upset it or she tripped and fell over it. The blazing oil spread and her clothes were in flames almost instantly. She screamed for help, but it was several minutes before neighbors heard. By that time she was unconscious and died shortly after they arrived in the house. Fireman confined the blaze to one room.

EX-REV. HOLMES TO STIR UP CAPE COD

"Virtue gospel" will be preached up and down the country's "ham playground" on Cape Cod this season if friends and supporters of Guy Willis Holmes are successful in their efforts to establish him as an evangelist.

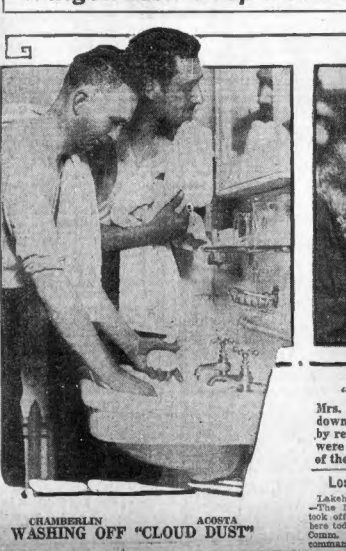

The ex-Methodist pastor, unseated at the last South Massachusetts, Conn. conference after charges of immorality had been lodged against him by Miss Antoinette Martin, New Bedford tea room waitress, and speech over the radio in New Bedford expressed himself as satisfied that the failure of a jury to agree on his guilt completely established his innocence, declaring that "twelve good men and true refused to believe me guilty of the things my enemies had charged."

Friends are engaged in taking care of heavy debts incurred by the ex-pastor as the result of the trial by relaying a fund for Mr. Holmes' wife and four children.

His friends hope to open a new sect church for him in New Bedford. "We have a great work for us here," said Mr. Holmes to his radio audience. Radio station WYBH, over which Mr. and Mrs. Holmes spoke, later received more than 400 telephone calls from men and women expressing faith in Mr. Holmes and many letters were received.

Carroll a Victim of Nerves, Says Doctor

Earl Carroll is a victim of his own nerves and hysteria, in the opinion of Dr. Edmund Wilson, first assistant superintendent of the Boston City Hospital, who commented today on the unromantic state the theatrical producer has been in now since Wednesday.

The medical expert declared the condition is not serious because Carroll is not really "out," but is in so far as physical reactions are concerned, merely a deep sleep.

A high-strung, nervous condition, accentuated by the final realization that he must serve his prime time worried Carroll into a complete loss of his reflexes, the doctor said. Cases of coma, he pointed out, have been known to go on for weeks at a time, but with constant watching and care, artificial feeding and a continual supply of body fluids, patients emerge all right.

"Carroll's coma is the outcome of hysteria brought on by tremendous worry," Dr. Wilson explained. "His wild organ function, such as his heart, lungs, kidney and liver. There is no paralysis of the muscles of the throat in his case, I believe."

cities of Hunan Province, with Hunan and troops coming in on Hankow. A haste turn in the affairs of the Chinese Nationalist forces served today to cast a doubt over the authority that may back the reply of Eugene Chen, Chinese Foreign Minister, to the demands of the powers, made after the entrance committed on foreigners at Nanking.

Confident with the delivery of the reply by Chen, the implementation of the Chinese government at Hankow was ordered by the Kuomintang, or Cantonese Nationalist party, and the setting up of a new government at Nanking by General Chiang Kai-shek, the Cantonese commander, who is seeking to drive the extremists from his party, was forecast.

AWAY CHANG'S REPLY
The protest of the powers was handed to General Chiang Kai-shek.

News From China Is Censored by British

Washington, April 15 (A. P.)—Most of the news dispatches from China are being "censored" by British sources. Rear Admiral W. H. G. Bullard, retired, U. S. N., chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, declared today after a conference at the White House.

Bullard, last returned from China, called to thank President Coolidge for his appointment to the commission. "British censorship is being exercised chiefly on dispatches sent through London," Bullard declared.

Intensely with his delivery to Chen and it has been reported, that Chang would make a more conciliatory reply than the one he made as the Kankow government, of which Chen was a member, has now been repudiated by the Nanking conference, the exact status and effectiveness of the changes must remain in doubt.

It was noted that the Nanking leaders described Chen as a tool of Marshal Borodin, the Russian communist adviser of the Kankow government, and not as a communist himself. Chen himself may be already virtually a fugitive from the moderate group in his own party. There is no question that his reply to the demands was somewhat more conciliatory than had been said here, but the extent to which it may be accepted by an antagonist of the Washington government remains to be seen.

There was still no indication today as to when a reply to the demands might come also from General Chiang. The American demands call for prompt apology by Chang as commander-in-chief for the Nanking massacre and for his written assurances for the protection of Americans in China.

Americans in Little Danger, Bullard Tells Congress

Washington, April 15 (A. P.)—Rear Admiral W. H. G. Bullard, retired, now chairman of the Radio Commission, reported on the Chinese situation before the Senate today and expressed the belief that American lives were in little or no danger in China. Marines were needed in China to protect property, he said, but he declared that many stories of attacks on Americans were untrue. Admiral Bullard said many stories from China came through London, where undoubtedly strict censorship was applied.

Chen Asks for Inquiry Into Nanking Killings

Hankow, April 15 (A. P.)—An international commission to investigate the Nanking "incident" is requested by Eugene Chen, the Cantonese Foreign Minister, in his reply to the recent five power note demanding reparations and apology for the outrages which followed the capture of the Yangtze city by the Chinese army.

The reply was handed to the consuls of the five powers—the United States, Great Britain, France, Japan and Italy. In reply to the United States and Great Britain Chen says that they "bonched" themselves Nanking. In reply to the British and the French he makes references to the bombardment of "defensible" Shanghai, the foreign settlement at Canton. Otherwise the replies were brief.

In reply to the United States he says his government will make reparation for all damage done to the American Consulate at Nanking and that as for personal injuries to Americans it is ready to make "all reasonable necessary reparation" except where there is a lack of proof that the injuries were "caused by the British and American naval bombardment" or by the Northern rebels.

Shot That Started Sacco Case Fired 7 Years Ago

Today is the seventh anniversary of the South Braintree tragedy that has resulted in Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti being doomed to death in the electric chair. It was on April 15, 1920, that Paymaster Frederick Parmenter and his guard, Alessandro Berardelli, were shot down by highwaymen in front of the Slater-Morrill shoe factory, South Braintree, where both men were employed.

announced there would be no reenactment of the crime. The millionaire liberal was untroubled by this. "As long as we are possible and don't molest anyone, the police can't interfere," he said.

The Harvard students were to meet James J. at the appointed hour, some of the students showed up. It was then learned that the members of the Harvard Liberal Club had been advised by Professor Ladd that the project was not a legal one and the students had called off their part in the venture.

Undaunted, James, who offered to go, loaded the newspaper men and cameramen into cars and started for Harvard square to pick up a load of "vagrants" and others who were willing to go with him and help reenact the murder scene.

It will go down alone if no one goes with me," James told the newspapermen. The reporters assured him that they would accompany him under any circumstance. The caravan headed for Harvard square, from where it was to chart its course toward South Braintree. James told the reporters that his one object was to see just what the workers in the Slater-Morrill shoe factory had of the spot where the killing of Paymaster Parmenter and his guard took place.

Messages are still pouring into Governor Fuller's office unabated. One message, from (Frank) Connelley, the writer, suggested that Governor Fuller, in order to justify his course properly, "take the humane course of going to the prison and meet Sacco and Vanzetti personally and talk with them."

Representative Roland D. Sawyer, Ware minister-legislator, whose refusal to support a legislative investigation of the Sacco-Vanzetti case was overwhelmingly voted down by the House, today issued a statement declaring the defeat of his measure was another effort of enemies to embarrass the Governor.

HAS FAITH IN FULLER

Representative Sawyer, who was accused on the floor of the House of having taken a bribe, declared that despite the death of his resolve, he had the utmost confidence in Governor Fuller, in order to justify the Governor to make a complete investigation before permitting Sacco and Vanzetti to die in the chair.

Mr. Sawyer's statement follows: "I have realized the uphill fight which is facing us in the effort to secure an investigation of a decision of the Superior Court. I have been in too many fights for unpopular cause to be dismayed by the treatment now being received in the House. "But no question is ever settled until it is settled right. I am so sure that grave mistakes of justice will become a fact if these men are executed, and that consequently, a great stain will be placed on the State, that I feel sure Governor Fuller will never allow these men to go to the chair without a careful investigation of the situation, even if the House leadership was eager to let things slide."

SCORES HUMAN WASTE IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Present artificially of the public schools of America is driving young boys and girls out of the schools to waste a life which would be more real, declared L. Gilbert Drake of the Youtman High School in Louisville, before 100 commercial teachers in the ballroom of the Statler Hotel today.

Reference was made by the speaker to the terrific "waste" of human material during high school years, represented by the discouragement of students and their withdrawal before they are equipped for the work.

Every boy and girl in the high schools comes from a real life into an artificial one, said Mr. Drake. Discouragement takes possession of them when they realize that in the school they are living an existence which has no counterpart in any career that they will ever undertake unless it is teaching.

"Obviously Latin and Greek have no relationship to their later outside life. Yet these studies continue, and if you are going to stop this waste, you will have to give these boys and girls the life of the country which will fit them for definite careers."

Drake's talk opened today's session of the three-day convention of the Eastern Commercial Teachers' Association. He was followed by Dr. F. L. Hoffman of Boston, Institute Wesleyan Hills, who spoke on "The Need of Higher Education in Commerce."

Numerous session meetings and conferences devoted to commercial teaching were held during the week. The closing session will be held tomorrow morning, at which the principal speaker will be H. A. Phelan of Boston.

Divorcee Wins

WILL WED BOY
Mrs. Thelma Tibbets, 27, won her fight to enter the Buzzell family when she was granted a license in Madison, Me., her home town, to wed Elmer Buzzell, 17. Elmer must get a license in Canaan, Me.

Madison, Me., April 15.—Willie Buzzell, 14-year-old disinherited son and cynic, grins today as he hears that Mrs. Thelma Tibbets, 18-year-old divorcee who filed him for his brother, has succeeded in getting a license here to marry Elmer.

Willie grins because he knows that this license issued to Mrs. Tibbets in this town means nothing at all. Now Willie, who is only 17 years old, faces the town fathers of Canaan, the same selection men who refused to grant Willie permission to marry the divorcee, and Willie stops in the midst of his word-chopping to chuckle the opinion that the same town fathers will equally adamant against granting Elmer a license.

Elmer's plea to the town authorities is to be tested today. Elmer and Mrs. Tibbets came here a few days ago seeking intention papers. They were told the papers could not be given them until written permission from the town fathers was secured, and now the whole matter rests with the officials of Canaan.

BUSHNELL WILL NOT PUT BAN ON BOOKS

If Boston folk actually want to read the books barred in the latest crusade against literature sold in the city, they have to do so in the city of Cambridge where they find them on sale.

This is no aid for Cambridge bookstores, but simply a statement of fact following the stand taken by District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex County.

The Middlesex county official refused to set himself up as a literary censor, and told the booksellers that they must be their own censors, leaving them to understand that they must also stand the responsibility if the courts adjudge the books on sale immoral or obscene.

Appointed to by the Booksellers' Committee, Bushnell absolutely refused to add literary censorship to his other duties. District Attorney William J. Foley, too, when approached by the committee, refused to change his determination that his office will extend no further moral supervision on books, and will deal with literature only when complaints are made and the sellers of the books complained against are located.

Disseminators of the banned of certain books in Boston, declaring the books against. This literature is "high-handed act."

The signers of the protest include Elmer Bedwick, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, Martineau, publisher of that magazine; M. A. DeWitt Jones, formerly of the Atlantic Monthly editorial board and a well-known author; Alfred R. McIntyre, president of Little, Brown & Co., publisher; Herbert P. Jenkins, president of the Boston Book Society; and James R. McDonald, head of the education department of Little, Brown & Co.

FRAZEE SHOW PLEASES AT WILBUR

By NICHOLAS YOUNG
THAT Mr. Frazer believes will be his own contribution to the gallery of Boston's flying and summer season in ardent musical theatricals dropped off to an impulsive beginning last evening in the Wilbur. Another of those brilliant, two titles, no dear to the first, one heart and soul was pinned upon this new creation.

Proud Grandfather Decrees Holiday for Pupils

Southboro, April 12.—A holiday was declared for the pupils and faculty of St. Mark's School in Southboro by Dr. William Greenough Thayer because—

LEGISLATOR IN RAP AT FULLER

A defence of the Legislature for its overlooking of many of the votes of Governor Fuller is voiced by Rep. Lemuel C. Hall of Weymouth, who declared in a public announcement that the Governor "assumed a dictatorship that looked no opportunity to make himself a dictator against the members of the two branches."
"Hardly had the 1927 Legislature convened, the gentleman from Weymouth complained, 'and before the Governor could possibly have had reason to find fault with any lack of co-operation, he attacked certain members of both branches directly, and the entire membership in general.'"

100 DEAD, TOLL OF STORMS IN 12 STATES

By the Associated Press
Tornadoes, blizzards, cloud-bursts and floods have brought death lists in a dozen states to upwards of 100 in five days, sent scores to hospitals, many with slight chance to recover, and left hundreds homeless.

The storm area extended from the central Rocky Mountain states to the Mississippi valley, where tributaries of the nation's greatest river drained a vast section to wash out or menace lives.

Texas landed the casualty lists with more than 50 dead and scores in hospitals. Tornadoes in Southwestern Texas, where 41 perished in a tornado, was harked off by a storm that struck widely separated points.

1,000 HOMELESS.

Leaves crumbled in lower Mississippi valley states to threaten many communities. A debris like gave way at Columbus, Ky., leaving 800 homeless.

Upwards of 1,000 persons were forced from their homes at Fort Smith and Van Buren, Ark., where the Arkansas river concentrated torrents from Kansas and Oklahoma.

Flooding, temperatures in the mountain states changed rain to snow, Wyoming and Nebraska. In huge drifts in central Colorado, while snowplows attempted to clear railroad cuts where transcontinental trains were delayed.

HEAVY STOCK LOSSES.

Wyoming and Nebraska stockmen feared heavy losses to livestock because of the drifts from three to ten feet in height that kept herds from feed lots.

Thousands of acres of valuable farm land were under water in Illinois and Missouri.

Silt and debris left on growing crops throughout the flooded area in expected to wipe out small grain and cotton.

Damage in Oklahoma and Kansas alone was estimated as high as $1,000,000.

The National Red Cross supervised relief to thousands.

EVERYBODY TALKS LESLEY'S WOMEN'S APPAREL FOR LESS

The Sacco-Vanzetti case again challenges public attention. In the month of April, the Boston Evening American publishes a legal analysis of the trial made by Felix Frankfurter, LL. B., instructor in law at Harvard.

In preceding Dr. Frankfurter's analysis, the Boston Evening American in no degree either endorses or sponsors it.

By FELIX FRANKFURTER

CHAPTER VII

Plainly their arrest meant to Sacco and Vanzetti arrest for radicalism. That being so, why should they evade police inquiries; what fear governed them in making lies to escape that charge?

The early winter of 1919-20 saw the beginning of an elaborately planned campaign by the Department of Justice under Attorney-General Mitchell Palmer for the wholesale arrest and deportation of "reds"—allies under suspicion of sympathy with the Communist regime.

The details of these raids, their brutality and their lawlessness, are set forth authoritatively in decisions of United States courts condemning the misconduct of the Department of Justice. These findings the Attorney-General never ventured to have reviewed by the higher courts.

One of the leading citizens of Boston, John P. Moore, himself a banker, has called attention to the fact that "the hysteria against the 'reds' was so great, at the time when these men were convicted, that even the most substantial bankers in this city (Boston) were carried away to the extent of paying for full-page advertisements about the red peril."

Sacco and Vanzetti were notorious "reds." They were associates of leading radicals. They had for some time been on the list of suspects of the Department of Justice, and were especially obnoxious because they were draft-dodgers.

The press made them daily anxious for their safety. The newspapers, it will be recalled, were filled with lurid accounts of what the "reds" had done and were planning. A equally lurid account of the methods of the Government in dealing with the "reds."

Not only were Sacco and Vanzetti living in this enveloping atmosphere of apprehension; the terrifying methods of the Government had very specific meaning for them. Two of their friends had already been deported. Deportation, they knew, meant not only expulsion and uprooting from home. What it did

Let us now resume the story of the trial. The witnesses for the Commonwealth had dealt with identification of men and of bullets, and the suspicious conduct of Sacco and Vanzetti at the time of arrest. On the witness stand stood Sacco and Vanzetti accounted for their movements on April 15. They also accounted for their suspicious behavior on May 6.

Up to the time that Sacco and Vanzetti testified to their radical activities, their pacifism and their flight to Mexico to escape the draft, the trial was a trial for murder and banditry; with the cross-examination of Sacco and Vanzetti pacifism and radicalism became the dominant emotional issues.

Of course, these were not the technical issues which were left to the jury. But, as Mr. Justice Holmes has admonished us, "the spirit of forms (juries) are extremely likely to be impregnated by the enveloping atmosphere." Outside the courtroom the "red hysteria" was rampant; it was allowed to dominate the trial.

The prosecutor systematically played on the feelings of the jury by exploiting the unpatriotic and disloyal beliefs of Sacco and Vanzetti, and the judge allowed him thus to divert and pervert the jury's mind. Only a detailed knowledge of the conduct of the prosecutor, mentioned by the Court, can give an adequate realization of the extent to which prejudice, instead of being rigorously excluded, was systematically fostered.

The opening question on cross-examination of Vanzetti by the District Attorney discloses a motif that he persistently followed: Q. (By Mr. Katemann) So you left your home, Mr. Vanzetti, in May, 1917, to do the draft, did you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When this country was at war, you ran away, so you would not have to fight as a soldier? A. Yes.

This method was elaborated when Sacco took the stand: Q. (By Mr. Katemann) Did you say yesterday you love a free country? A.—Yes, sir?

Certain flowers have been found to be such a strong scent along with the fragrance of the room. Lilies and tuberoses, for example. Another disad- vantage of these flowers is their use for decorating occasions. The scent is fairly certain to be remembered by sick persons, and cannot do them any good. There is a good many flowers which might be used when buying flowers for a sick person. A small bouquet of flowers, usually arranged in a more satisfactory than a large bouquet, is a good idea. Some flowers, such as lilies, can be clipped into any of the flowers, and they are more satisfactory than the flowers. One or two flowers of a series, such as lilies, are a mixture of several kinds of flowers, and they are a feeling of confusion instead of a feeling of comfort. BIG Tim O'Hara looked at John English, the lawyer, as he spoke.

"Sure," John women are not worth a powder it would take to blow them up.

"You mean when I look at the work of the West Lumber Company, do you mean it is a waste of money to have a woman in a position of power? When you speak that way of women you indicate the kind you run with."

The man smiled at the sky, which was momentarily growing darker.

"Kind of women I run with?"

plained. "He don't cry—less he's really hurt."

"Well, his Uncle Timmie won't hurt him," Tim declared.

"Does Roy like Uncle Tim?" the brother questioned.

For a moment, the little fellow studied the matter.

"Roy like Tim," he finally admitted.

"Did you hear that, Murdock?" Tim asked.

"He likes us."

The rain had slackened to a very thin drizzle now. The older boy stirred restlessly.

"I guess we better be going," he said.

"Mother'll be worried about us."

"Sure sure," Tim agreed. "Women are like that."

Tenderly he put Roy into the wagon.

"Murdock," he ordered, "bring me a bunch of them burkap sacks. We'll have to wrap the little fellow up so he won't get wet; he might catch cold."

A little later, Roy, swathed like a mummy, was pronounced ready for his ride home. As a parting gesture, Tim pulled a bright, half dollar out of his pocket.

"Mince!" he told Roy.

"What do you say?" prompted the older boy.

"Fang," the little fellow said, "and closed a dirty fat light on the coin."

The older boy took hold of the wagon tongue.

"Oh! up, easy," Roy ordered.

Away moved the little adventurer, with the men under the work, ahead watching in silence. At the turn, the gray-brown bundle of sacks moved for an instant. A small white face showed, and faintly came a call.

"Roy, Tim."

The big man waved his hand in farewell. After a little he turned away, and sighed heavily.

"Kids are a great institution," Murdock said cheerfully.

"Sure to they are that," Tim agreed dully.

"Then how about women?" asked John English. "If it wasn't for the minutes, there wouldn't be kiddies like that little fellow."

"Tim nodder."

"Women are necessary," he agreed. Then, with a flash of the old fire, he added: "Sure. A necessary sary will."

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS--

By HELEN ROWLAND

Mrs. Solomon, now in the Dangerous Hour, when every woman breatheth of rose-covered bangles and a breakfast table set for two!

I charge thee, be not deceived by blue signal. Wed not a Outle for his temple in her chin, and be re- hounded when thou findest a hollow place in her head. For the head of a dancing fopper is one of the great men apocal!

Marry not a dandel who's lip- stick hath been sampled by every hawk in passing, with the hope that thou shalt have a corner on her time. For marriage is not a mine- like that turneth "everybody's Darling" into a One-man-woman, nor a butterfly into "Alas-with-the-First!"

Seek not to find a dandel upon the Night Club dance-floor, who will go into any kitchenette; rather mar- ry a woman who turneth thy head, in the fond delusion that she will keep thee on thy feet! For God did not make thee that way!

Marry not, I charge thee, with the Big Idea that thou shalt not permit married life to cut into thine EYE- LINGS. For marriage is not a part- time job!

Nay, verily, I say unto thee, do not marry until thou hast reached that happy stage, where thou wouldst rather putter around the garden with ONE woman, than wiggle around the ball-rooms with a harem!

Wed not until thou art assured that thou wouldst be happier to spend thy whole life up here, than to go down and spend it for TWO, and to buy joy-water and lobster for a whole crowd!

HE'S got so many automobiles that whenever his wife does any shopping she goes downtown in two cars.

SOMETIMES she waits until the 5:37 express comes along so that she can get a late model.

ONE time she spent a whole morn- ing at a railroad crossing and the best she could get was three Fords and a Chevrolet.

THE engineer knows just the kind of a car she wants but he can't go off the tracks after it.

PIMPLES AND BLACK- HEADS ALL OVER FACE

Was ashamed to be seen—simple remedy brought quick improvement

Minden, Va., Aug. 5.—"Asthma ago I began to be troubled with enlarged nose and blackheads. Then pimples developed, and even boils. My skin was very sore and in a terrible condition. It was so disfigured and ugly that I was ashamed of it. I tried about every- thing to be had for pimples, but with no good results. I had heard Reshol Ointment and Soap is high- ly recommended for troubles like mine. I decided to try them. After one treatment there was a decided improvement, and the pimples began to fade away. Brain and Muscle

Thinking Is Worth While

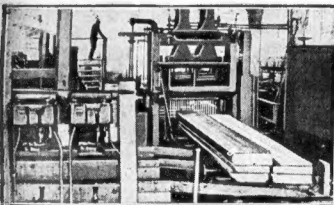

AN AFRICAN SAWMILL IN LIBERIA RUN BY MAN-POWER

This picture and the one below show that it pays us to use our brains. Above you see natives in Liberia running what they call a "sawmill."

By hard work, sweating long hours in the hot African forests, they manage to saw out a few boards in a day. Muscle does the work, brain does little, and muscle can earn just enough to keep the working body alive.

And even this work would be impossible to those natives EXCEPT FOR THE BRAIN THAT MADE THE SAW. That big saw, cutting through the log with the aid of native muscle, represents the thinking of hundreds of thousands of years. It took that long for men to work their way through stone and bronze up to steel. And it took long years to invent the sharp teeth on the end of the saw that cuts through the wood.

Without the thinking done by a higher race of men, those African savages could not saw up one board in a lifetime. If they wanted a house they would make it of mud; if they wanted a boat they would cut it out of a log with fire and sharp stones and rubbing with sticks of hard wood.

A MODERN GANG SAW. BRAIN WORK

Here you see five thick logs going at the same time through a gang saw that cuts 125 six-inch flooring boards in about the time it takes those native sawyers to make two strokes.

Two men with a modern band saw like this can cut 60,000 feet of timber in eight hours, and the hardest work the men do is to press an electric button. You know what this means when you are told that an ordinary six-room dwelling house of wood contains about 15,000 feet of lumber.

In a long day's hard work the natives can make two or three boards. In eight hours' skilful work two men aided by the brains of thinkers, can cut enough lumber to build complete four six-room houses.

That's the difference between brain and muscle. And as we exercise our muscle, or go through our daily jobs, it might pay us to ask, "How much could I add to my prosperity by a little thinking?"

And let us remember that the thing to think about first of all is "SELF-CONTROL."

Those native couldn't saw the boards if they couldn't control the saw. The men running the gang saw couldn't do much if they couldn't control the gang saw and the electric current.

You will never do much if YOU CAN'T CONTROL YOURSELF.

That is what each of us should say to himself and then DO A LITTLE THINKING ABOUT OUR OWN PROBLEMS.

The Public's Business

Senator Borah has said few things more to be praised than this:

"As long as I am chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee I propose to bring the facts of our relations with other countries into the open, where the people may know what they are and can pass judgment upon them for themselves."

On some subjects the Senator from Idaho is hard to follow. He sometimes seems to deal rather in objections than in solutions. But in his belief in publicity as the best cure for evil relations between nations he is passionate and steadfast. Borah's stand is in the best American tradition.

Henry and Edsel Ford refused three Wall Street offers of a billion dollars for their stock in the Ford Motor Company.

One offer was made in 1924, another in 1925 and the third in January, 1926.

Most of us would sell out mighty quick for a billion dollars and make preparations to live magnificently.

There are some things that the Ford family seem to prefer to looking. One of them is work. Interesting work into which a man can put his whole life and interest appeals to some people better than a lot of money and nothing to do.

Money alone does not bring happiness, as we all know.

When Mr. Mellon was offered a large sum to sell out his interest in a certain concern he said he didn't want to be bothered with taking care of that money.

He voiced the sentiment of many people who find that money is harder to take care of than it is to make.

People with nothing to do but twiddle their thumbs are apt, for the most part, to get in trouble. Friend Satan will find them an occupation if they haven't got any other.

Gilbert Chesterton says that most of the marital troubles among the rich and idle. When they have so much time on their hands they are apt to get into trouble.

Work is about the best moral antiseptic that has ever been discovered and it is a wise man that looks about for an interesting work.

It is the best means of prolonging life, the best remedy for getting out of one's self and the best digester of food.

An angry workman wrote a letter to President Eliot stating that he hoped that President Eliot would be compelled to work hard the rest of his days.

Dr. Eliot read the note and, with a smile, said: "I can't think of anything better that could happen to me than to have to work."
